

We're Totally Nerding out Over the Before and After Pics of These Historic Hotels

PHOTOS BY COURTESY

DREAM SOUTH BEACH

Once known as two legendary hotels, The Tudor Hotel and Palmer House (1939), Dream South Beach is a Miami architectural icon. The buildings were created by master architect Lawrence Murray Dixon, who was responsible for designing some of the most popular Art Deco style hotels in Miami Beach. Following a multi-million dollar renovation, the two buildings were united in the summer of 2011 to create the Dream South Beach hotel. The Dream South Beach now offers 107 rooms/suites including the Shala Spa, and two highly acclaimed dining and nightlife venues: Naked Taco, a cheeky restaurant serving inventive Mexican fare; and HIGHBAR, a playful 1970s-themed rooftop lounge fitted with an infinity pool and jaw-dropping Atlantic Ocean views.